

Anonymous, first published with this tune in 1804      88. 88. (L. M.)

Lexington

Transcribed from The Farmer's Evening Entertainment, 1804.

D minor      Solomon Howe, 1804

1. The Prince of Peace, whose gentle sway True life and light and joy conveys; From his exalted throne above, The

2. His word that gives the precious news Of pardon, both to Greeks and Jews, Freedom to every humble mind, With

1. fruits of his celestial love. The ancient prophet long foretold When great Messiah could convey The Gospel time, more worth than gold; His love, to distant lands and seas.

2. bliss exalted and refined. As cooling waters gently flow, And grant relief from pain and sin, His grace shall heal each mortal woe; From fears without and guilt within.