O CLAP YOUR HANDS TOGETHER
from Musica Deo sacra (London, 1668)

Psalm 47

Transposed up a minor third; original note values.

A note for those unfamiliar with English cathedral practice: Decani (Dec.) and Cantoris (Can.) refer to the two halves of the choir, placed on the south and north sides of the chancel, respectively, in a church with an altar at its Eastern end.
O clap your hands and sing praises to the Lord; for he is high and to be feared: he is the great King upon all the earth. He shall subdue the heathen, and will rule from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth.

For the Lord is high and to be feared: he is the great King upon all the earth. He shall subdue the heathen, and will rule from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth.

For the Lord is high and to be feared: he is the great King upon all the earth. He shall subdue the heathen, and will rule from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth.
