Translation

R^v Deliver me, O Lord, from eternal death on that fearful day when the heavens and the earth shall be moved,
when thou shalt come to judge the world by fire.

V^y That day, the day of wrath, calamity and misery: the day of great and exceeding bitterness

R^v when thou shalt come to judge the world by fire.

Deliver me, O Lord, from eternal death on that fearful day when the heavens and the earth shall be moved,
when thou shalt come to judge the world by fire.

Liturgical Function and Form

In the Use of Sarum, Libera me was the ninth respond at Matins for the Dead and, with different verses, at Matins on All Souls' Day (2 November). It was also sung, with the verse Dies illa only, just before entering the quire during processions taking the body to the church.¹ It is uncertain whether Parsons envisaged a liturgical performance. He did not set the second and third verses (Quid ergo miserimus and Nunc te, Christe), but this would still have permitted a performance during processions. The sources clearly indicate the repeat after the verse Dies illa. The final polyphonic da capo was liturgically mandatory. It is not stipulated in any copy of Parsons's music, but the inconclusive nature of the cadence at bar 50 suggests that it should be observed.

Editorial Conventions

The nomenclature of the voice-parts follows the Tudor convention.

The original clef, staff signature, mensuration symbol and first note of each part are shown on the prefatory staves. Editorial accidentals are placed above the notes concerned.

Ligatures are denoted by the sign [—].

Spelling of the text has been modernised.

Text repetition signs in the underlay have been expanded editorially in italics. Underlay between square brackets is entirely editorial.

Notes on the Readings of the Sources

In each section below the readings are listed by source. Each reference to a bar or group of bars is separated by an oblique stroke. Within these references multiple readings in the same voice are separated by commas and readings in different voices by semicolons. The order within each entry is: 1) bar number; 2) voice; 3) reading of the source. For extended references subsequent bar numbers are in brackets. Pitches are in capital letters, preceded by a number where necessary, e.g. ¹E = first note E in the bar.
